FINDING FREEDOM

Explore the biblical vision of God's gift of freedom
on the 800th anniversary of Magna Carta.

FINDING FREEDOM

Magna Carta has been much in the news during this, its 800th anniversary year - and Runnymede is in the Guildford Diocese. Magna Carta contained key clauses concerning liberty and the ideas enshrined within it have their roots deep in the biblical vision of God's gift of freedom. Its legacy as a 'foundation of freedom' has transcended barriers of culture and language, shaping democratic and judicial systems across the world. To mark the anniversary, there will be a major interpretation project at the Cathedral.

Summer School 2015 will explore the themes of freedom and service with a wide range of different speakers and topics. In John's Gospel, Jesus Christ promises that in him we will know the truth that will set us free. St Paul calls us to exercise freedom in service to God and to others.

Today, women and men near and far, cry out for freedom from oppression, poverty, addiction, distraction and self-absorption. How can the good news of Jesus Christ help us to find true freedom in our contemporary world? This is an excellent opportunity for us to think about our ethical, social and missional engagement with the world as disciples and citizens.

+ Andrew Guildford.

Discipleship is a life-wide and life-long commitment to follow Jesus Christ. We pattern our approach around the four themes of Rooted, Working, Responsible and Sharing Faith. We have colour-coded the various sessions available during this year's Summer School to help you find your way around the programme. To find out more about the four themes, go to our page on the Diocesan website.
